

Bolzano, 9th March 2020

I imagine that you all, like me, are following the evolution and progression of the news regarding Coronavirus with great concern, especially with respect to what is happening here in Italy.

If you are looking to programme your tour in the Dolomites, don't hesitate to contact me, I will inform you about every aspect and cost, but in this time I don't ask deposit for the reservations because the evolution is so fast every day.

Our Italian health system ranks among the world's best in its ability to address and combat infectious disease. Italy has been immediately proactive in testing and instituting the necessary procedures required in virus cases such as Coronavirus. It is perhaps for this reason that Italy seems to be more affected than other countries, when it could simply be a case of more proactive testing.

As professional touristic operator, I would like only to inform my future clients as best I can of the current state of affairs as we see it. Of course, the situation is rapidly changing everywhere in the world, but I remain hopeful. In any case I will update you with any significant news.

We are hoping for the best..... and I hope to see you soon in the magical Dolomites!
